Re: United States v. Currie, et al.
Criminal No. RDB-10-0532

Dear Judge Bennett:

I am writing to clarify and provide further information on one aspect of the computer evidence that was at issue in yesterday's motions hearing in this matter.

One of the nine imaged Shoppers computers was a laptop computer. For some technical reason, the laptop could not be imaged on site at the time of the execution of the search warrant in May, 2008. Accordingly, that laptop was physically seized and imaged later at the FBI. As indicated yesterday, the government has already provided the search results from all nine computer images, including the laptop, to the defense.

It had been my understanding that the laptop itself had been returned to Shoppers some time ago. After yesterday's hearing, I learned that my understanding is incorrect and that the FBI is still in possession of the laptop. This morning, I contacted Ed Magarian, counsel for Shoppers, and have made arrangements to return the laptop immediately so that it can be subject to the Rule 17(c) subpoena discussed during the hearing.

I apologize for my error. I am available at the Court's convenience if further information is needed.

Very truly yours,

Rod J. Rosenstein
United States Attorney
